Introducció

Fruiters de diferents varietats presenten la necessitat d'una certa quantitat de fred (característica) per sortir amb normalitat, sense afectacions posteriors, de l'estat de repós hivernal. Abans d'aquesta sortida, la quantitat de fred acumulada es tracta de quantificar comptant les hores amb temperatura igual o per sota de 7°C que han esdevingut des de l'inici fins al final del repós. Això es coneix como nombre d'hores-fred.

Per sospesar la idoneïtat d'un emplaçament, segons el criteri de les hores-fred que requereix una varietat, tradicionalment, a l'hemisferi nord, es compten les hores les quals la seva temperatura (mitjana) no supera els 7°C desde l'1 de Novembre fins a l'1 de Març (del següent any) en tal zona.

Quan els hiverns són suaus les varietats més exigents en repós hivernal, pròpies de zones temperat-fredes, p. ex. de pomer, perer, cirerer o pruner europeu, poden presentar problemes d'adaptació. Aquests són molt probables si entre l'1 de Novembre y l'1 de Febrer les hores-fred comptabilitzades no superen les 500 [1].

Per fer aquest text, s'han fet servir les dades de la Xarxa d'Estacions Meteorològiques Automàtiques (XEMA) del Servei Meteorològic de Catalunya (METEOCAT) [2].

Un * indica registre incomplet. Es a dir, no hi ha dades en algun període del mes corresponent. Això implica que el nombre d'hores-fred computat és igual o inferior al real. A més, quan les dades es mostren separades cronològicament en diferents períodes, cadascun correspon a una nova estació meteorològica (l'antiga ha deixat d'estar operativa). També, quan en un municipi hi ha més d'una estació meteorològica operativa a la vegada, es mostren per separat més d'una sèrie de dades amb períodes coincidents.
